DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

1. Claims 1, 2, 6-10, and 12-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Isnardi et al. (6,400,400).

Regarding claim 1, Isnardi discloses storage devices for storing encoded video bitstreams (col. 2, lines 66-67, col. 3, lines 1-8), which meet the first data base as claimed, and a test bitstream generator 112, which meets the test data generator as claimed. The storage devices are intended to provide both encoded video bitstreams, such as from the hard disk drive, or raw video signals, such as from the camera or the camcorder. The test bitstream generator provides the bit stream based on the video bitstreams, either encoded or raw from the storage devices, and the user selected peak error threshold (col. 3, line 66, to col. 4, lines 6). The user selected peak error threshold meets the input items of a user as claimed.

Regarding claim 2, in col. 3, lines 6-8, Isnardi indicates that the video bitstreams generated by the test bitstream generator are also stored in the storage devices.

Regarding claim 6, see col. 3, lines 9-16.

Regarding claim 7, see col. 3, line 58, to col. 4, lines 5. The selection of a particular peak error threshold in Isnardi meets the coincidence of test input items as claimed.

Regarding claim 8, Isnardi inherently includes storage for storing the error signals (col. 9, lines 14-20).

Regarding claim 9, see col. 9, lines 16-20.

Regarding claim 10, see rejections as set forth above.

Regarding claim 12, see rejection to claim 1.

Regarding claim 13, see col. 4, lines 36-37. The specially constructed encoded input test bitstream meets the scenario generating step and the outputting step as claimed.

Regarding claims 14-15, see corresponding rejections as set forth above.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 3-5, 11, and 16-20 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
4. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to M. Lee whose telephone number 571-272-7349. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday through Thursday from 9 to 6.
